What is DesignCurial (www.designcurial.com)

Design Curial is the UK's leading dedicated site for Design and Architecture. DesignCurial combines the credibility of editorial content from FX and Blueprint magazines – the two leading publications in this space – along with a targeted marketplace in which to showcase your products and services.

Influential Editorial

FX: The essential publication for the contract interior design industry, FX comprehensively profiles the best new products and projects from around the world. The magazine reaches the most influential designers, buyers and decision makers in the commercial design marketplace. The key sectors of public, workspace, hotel, leisure and retail design all feature. From architects and specifiers to end users, FX magazine has now become a must have resource for contract design professionals for the past two decades.

Blueprint: Crossing the barriers between Architecture, Design and Art, Blueprint has been at the forefront of the design industry for more than 30 years. This distinctive approach has built an enviable brand status and an equally desirable readership profile. Appealing to both a professional and non-professional audience, its character reflects the typically diverse, challenging and ground-breaking content that stimulates much of the industry debate.

What can you expect from the combined perspective of these two sister publications?

With an illustrious history, these magazines and their extensive editorial content on architecture, design, art and interiors, encompasses insight from the most prestigious international projects through to the distinctively quirky, nitty-gritty projects in niche sectors.

DesignCurial, being the online platform and interface for both these market leading sister publications, embodies this collective content. Widely respected for its authority, scope and quality, DesignCurial delivers cutting edge commentary and in-depth industry insight through its strong UK and global online presence.

Products

Further to the associated kudos and market exposure this lends to your products, readers will also benefit from cutting edge editorial, aligning your brand and your product with key influencers and thought leaders within the design markets.

DesignCurial is a dynamic resource that delivers commercial substance above and beyond the obvious commitment to cutting edge design editorial, combining seamlessly with an all-encompassing product database that boasts user-friendly functionality.
