KEY FEATURES & BENEFITS OF CORIAN®

Durability

Kitchens are for living in and enjoying. Corian® deals with daily wear and tear superbly. Even if marks and cuts do show up from time to time, the beauty of Corian® is that they can be polished out with ease.

Hygiene

Because Corian® is non-porous any marks, stains or liquids remain on its surface and can be easily removed. Corian® is used extensively in hospitals so it's perfect for the kitchen as well.

Acrylic

Corian® benefits from being made from acrylic which means that it is UV stable so will not fade over time. It also means that it is thermoformable and therefore can be heated and shaped into an amazing array of curved shapes, including for doors and drawers.

Style

Above all it looks great! Over 60 colours allow a wide range of creative choice and because Corian® can be jointed inconspicuously a wide variety of combinations can also be used. Matt or high-gloss finishes can be chosen according to taste.

Value for Money

Corian® can offer a high quality end-product that looks great and will stand the test of time, all at affordable prices. Quality Network fabricators will be pleased to quote work for you to give you an idea of the value you can obtain.

CORIAN® ALLOWS DESIGN FLEXIBILITY

Colour Co-ordination and Seamless Flows

There is a great variety of Corian® sinks available which means you can create a seamless transition between the worktop and the sink.

Wide Islands

No silicone joints required whatever the width and length of the island and the same for slab ends.

Coves and Window Sills

Coved upstands make Corian® easy to maintain and once again do away with silicone joints that can blacken and collect germs and bacteria.

Edge Treatments

Traditional radius edges or maybe a waterfall edge around the wet areas are just as easy to achieve as a shark's nose or modern 12mm 'thin' look.

Curves and Lighting

Use the ability to thermoform Corian® to make unique designs. Corian® is also semi-translucent so the design possibilities with lighting are endless.

Combined with other Materials

Corian® looks superb with a number of other materials. Elegant woods are a particular favourite set against the calm tones of the Corian® palette.

TESTIMONIALS

Diane Berry of Diane Berry Kitchens talks about why she enjoys designing with DuPont™ Corian®

We love to work with Corian® as we are very much a design-led company and it gives us the flexibility we need. So often kitchen designers restrict themselves with the limitations of slab worktops trying to keep the design within 3000mm lengths and all too often using straight lines.

Create a softer look with Corian®

So Corian® allows us to make kitchens have a much softer, more tactile feel, with soft flowing curves and rounded edges. We can create anything from Corian® and as long as you understand how to maintain and polish it; the surface can be easily maintained.

We recently installed Anjali Patak's kitchen (of the Patak curry fame) and she uses her kitchen for all her Indian cooking and has no problem keeping her worktops, which are bright white, stain free.

So all the doom-mongers in our trade should embrace this versatile product, understand its limitations, as all materials have limitations, and realise all the other benefits it brings. They would then enjoy coming up with new design ideas.

Out of the comfort zone

The public need us to keep our minds open to fresh and exciting concepts so push yourself out of your comfort zone and learn to love this material. If you are unsure, borrow a slab and live with it in your kitchen and you will see how easy it is to clean.

I personally have been selling kitchen now for 32 years and have sold Corian® all this time. I have even won business by re-working the client's old Corian® worktops: changing the design of their room completely by taking the tops out, cutting them up and re-making them into the new design.

Cost effective for the client and very green-friendly too. Another positive benefit for people to invest in Corian® worktops.

Testimonials

Martin Smith of Holloways of Ludlow

Holloways of Ludlow have a designer in Martin Smith who regularly uses Corian®.

A recent award-winning project saw Corian® featuring in an outstanding blend of design and functionality. Space is always an issue for terraced homes in London. In this case the kitchen was too small for a dining table and a TV seating area.

The solution was to create an island out of Glacier White Corian® that flows seamlessly into a dining table. Few products allow such a winning formula for a space-saving solution.

Here's what Martin Smith had to say himself about the nominated project:

"The design centered around the location, shape and orientation of the non-rectangular sculptured island made from Glacier White Corian®, and the irregular shape was key to allowing the room flow whilst serving three overlapping functions. Since the room was too small to accommodate a free-standing dining table in addition to a TV seating area, by choosing Corian® as a material for both the island and table, not only allowed me to design a visually appealing, seamless connection between the areas, but also provided a truly bespoke space-saving solution."

When working with irregular shapes and arrangements, Corian® really is the only material to consider. The arrangement of a worktop level stepping down into table level, supported by facing sides also in Corian®, made up of 27 separately cut pieces, with each connection made to appear completely seamless and solid.

The seamless connection also adding to the resulting rigidity of the resulting complete structure.

We also love to combine Corian® with other materials such as wood, stone, steel and glass to enable the creation of beautiful, individual, bespoke kitchens for our clients."
